THURSDAY, JANUARY 3, 1980

BELLE GLADE — PAHOKEE, FL.

DOROTHY WALKER was the last to qualify, last Thursday, for the special election on Jan. 29 for the Belle Glade East Borough City Commission seat vacated last month when Circuit Judge William Williams voided the Sept. 11 borough election in which Miss Walker defeated incumbent Kenneth Harris. Harris has so far been the only other candidate to qualify for the election. Other would-be candidates have until Jan. 9 to toss their hats into the special election ring.

Tighter belts needed

By DEAN JONES
Herald-Observer Editor

BELLE GLADE Government must tighten its belt and take a hard look at what can be accomplished by private enterprise during the 1980s, Palm Beach County Commissioner Dennis Koehler told Belle Glade Lions Wednesday.

Koehler, who has earned a reputation as a liberal and an environmentalist during his years of involvement in county government and politics, told the Lions he has been "tight with tax dollars, nothing I've learned from (County Commission Chairman) Bill Riley."

He reminded his audience during talk in which he openly admitted was "politicizing" as a candidate re-election in November, that he, among those county commissioners who demanded a tighter accounting of Community Action Council expenditures and said repeatedly the county, as well as government on other levels, will have to get even tighter during the next decade.

He said social workers during the past two decades have gotten used to incoming funds from federal, state and local government but many of them in the near future will find those funds may be drying up.

"Since the New Deal days," he said, "too many people have come to expect a free ride. In the 1980s, government is going to have to tighten its belt and ask itself if needs it has been meeting can be provided by the private sector."

Koehler spent much of his time discussing with the Lions, however, one large government expenditure he's been supporting in the form of a road bond issue due to be placed on the Mar. 11 ballot with the state presidential preference primary.

Answering a question by Lion Milton Carpenter, Koehler said it's true that a lot of the bond money will be spent on the coast rather than in the Glades but he noted that Bailey, the District 5 representative on the county commission, has

Weather service is step closer for area

By DEAN JONES
Herald-Observer Editor

The Glades area may be closer than it has been at any time in the past four years to realizing a dream of former Palm Beach County Commissioner E. W. "Bud" Weaver, in the form of a radio weather service, and Weaver is pushing hard for it when he takes ten officials on a tour next Tuesday.

Weaver has tried since he was on the county commission to get the National Weather Service to install a radio transmitter in the Glades to provide up to date weather bulletins and he has transferred the same zeal to his new position with the Western Palm Beach County Farm Bureau.

Weaver said this morning the transmitter may be realized in the wake of the tour he is planning next Tuesday for National Weather Service officials from Washington D.C., Fort Worth, Tex., Miami and West Palm Beach.

Expected to accompany the officials is either U.S. Congressman Dan Mica or Mica's assistant, Richard McBride. Weaver said the purpose of the tour is to show the need for the service.

The former county commissioner noted the transmitter would cost no more than $60,000 and it may be possible the transmitter console could be donated from the Fort Worth office, bringing the cost to $40,000 or less.

He noted that agricultural interests in the Glades lost more than $100 million in one night two years ago when the temperature dropped into a hard freeze.

"They're more interested in recreation though," Weaver said, "so we'll also be pointing out that a lot of fishermen come out here to go on Lake Okechobee. That's a dangerous piece of water and they have no warning service available."

Weaver said the transmitter, which could be located either in Belle Glade or Clewiston, would serve the entire Lake Okechobee area, as far away as LaBelle, and would be accessible to people in the area at the cost of a $15 radio receiver cube with a single battery.

"Right now," he said, "if someone wants the service, they have to buy a $400 radio to listen in on the service out of West Palm Beach."

He said the transmitter would be updated through the West Palm Beach office of the National Weather Service and would be of interest to agricultural interests, sportsmen and to the public at large in the case of severe weather such as tornadoes or hurricanes.

The transmitter would continuously transmit information on a tape that would be updated no less than once every 12 hours and could be updated within minutes when the situation warrants it.

Weaver said the tour would meet at the Belle Glade Holiday Inn at 9 a.m. Tuesday, then would be shown a film on agricultural interests by Spence Whitlock and taken on a tour of area agriculture before going to the Sugar Cane Growers of Florida sugar mill in Belle Glade, where they'll be hosted at lunch

Man drowns in freak accident

BELLE GLADE — An Osceola center man drowned late Wednesday night in a freak accident while working at a sugar cane loading point two miles from Shawano Drainage District off Browns Farm Road.

Sgt. John Raulerson of the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Department said the body of Robert Lee Isaac, 28, of 70 Osceola Center, was recovered shortly after midnight this morning on Gulf & Western property.

Raulerson reported Isaac had been walking down the embankment of a canal where he was working when he stumbled into a pot-type stove. Burning diesel fuel splashed onto Isaac's left leg.

Witnesses said he ran and jumped into the canal in an apparent effort to extinguish the flames and Isaac never returned to the surface.

Raulerson said Isaac was wearing two pairs of trousers when he went into the cold waters of the canal at 10:45 p.m. and neither Jean Claude Bastion, 35, of Osceola Center, nor Willie D. Young, about 40, of Avenue D in Belle Glade, went into the canal after him.

Raulerson said Isaac's body was recovered shortly after midnight this morning with a hook. An autopsy is scheduled for Friday at Glades General Hospital by Dr. Mario Ramos.

MARLETHA AND D'ANGELO POMPEY

New Years babies Glades' first in 1980s

The first of the new year's crop of babies in the Glades was also the only one born at Glades General Hospital on New Years Day, D'Angelo Lavon Pompey, the son of Elijah and Marletha Pompey of 208 N.W. 12th Drive in Belle Glade.

D'Angelo made his entrance into the world at 5:14 a.m. Tuesday, followed two hours and 26 minutes later by the second Glades area baby to make its entrance in 1980, Lindsay Blair Bennett.

Lindsay, who weighed in at 9 pounds, 11 ounces when she arrived at Everglades Memorial Hospital in Pahokee, is the daughter of Robert and Sarah Bennett of 1017 N.E. 27th St. in Belle Glade. Both parents are teachers at Glades Central Community High School. She arrived at 7:40 a.m. Jan. 1.

Lindsay turned out to be a bonus baby for the Bennett's, who received two cartloads of gifts from a dozen Pahokee merchants and organizations for being the first baby born in the new year and the decade.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT BENNETT AND LINDSAY

I have watched recently with growing concern as the 1980 presidential race shapes up. Most of my concern stemmed from the fact a Kennedy is once more running for the nation's top job.

I had no real arguments with John Kennedy, though I do feel his handling of the Cuban crisis left lots to be desired. However, his brother Ted leaves me cold.

And the other day, I became even more turned off. Upon leaving his Palm Beach resort vacation, Teddy ran afoul of a group of newsmen at Palm Beach International.

Though it was plain he didn't wish to bother with such a group of journalists, he deemed it necessary to pause for a time and answer their questions.

The first of those concerned the crisis in the Middle East and Kennedy said he couldn't see much reason for becoming involved; militarily, then turned the session back toward his own liking.

The domestic economy, he said, is the campaign's real issue. He couldn't understand how, he summed up, that some families were able to pay the tuition to send their children to school.

Now I would guess that would be a reasonable statement for someone whose ivory tower is so high it stands in danger of being tipped by the Space Shuttle.

How many Americans are forced to pay their children's tuition. Out here in the Glades, there's plenty who fork over the money but the last time I heard, we still have a system of public education.

I'm not knocking those who send their children to private school for whatever reason. What I am knocking is that a would-be president would make such a statement.

Ted, most of us middle Americans aren't all that worried about paying our children's tuition. Most of us are more concerned about making the house notes, the rental payments or even buying enough food to keep us fed.

Yep, you're right that the economy is one of our biggest concerns. And basing our beliefs on what you have to offer, it would be our only concern should you get yourself elected.

Not meaning you any harm, Ted, but why not just drop out of the race now and let some people who really know the problems Americans face get in the act and have a shot at it.

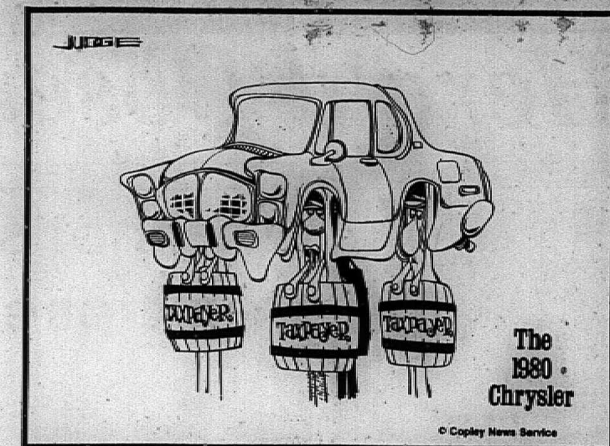

Christmas is over, but lingers at the Lampton household. The kids managed to come up with some super-noisy Santa Claus gifts and I'm still waiting for the incentives to run out or for them to break.

There's one toy I especially have in mind. If the batteries don't run out shortly, old Santa himself may well have a hand in seeing it gets broken!

Over in Glades County, Harold DeTar is stirring up the annual Thishlo Yunka contest again. This year, it'll be lake-wide with Sims and J-Mark in Belle Glade taking part on this end.

More about it later.

And finally... Won't it be nice to get back to a "normal" week without all these holiday interruptions?

The Chambr showed the way

The response to this year's "Shop Pahokee First" campaign sponsored by the Pahokee Chamber of Commerce was such that an even greater promotion should be launched next year.

While it cannot be determined how much money was spent in Pahokee that otherwise may have been spent elsewhere, we noted several comments from local residents who said they bought all their Christmas presents in Pahokee this year for the first time ever.

Besides making an attempt to keep Christmas purchases local, the Chamber also benefited through an increased awareness on the part of businessmen as to the Chamber's function.

The Pahokee Chamber added several new members; many of whom said they joined because "the Chamber is doing something for us." Unfortunately, much of work of the various Chambers is not highly visible within the community. It is necessary work, but businessmen don't

Good insurance

Like an insurance policy we hope we never have to make a claim on, it would be nice to know the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Department's Glades SWAT Team would never have to be used.

But when they're needed, like the same insurance policy, it's sure nice to know they're available.

Unfortunately, the team was needed last week but, fortunately, it was available when a Belle Glade man barricaded himself in his home and, again fortunately, the full strength of the SWAT Team wasn't required.

The local five-man team, under the leadership of Lt. George Suttle, was formed with the express intention of giving the Sheriff's Office the capability of handling hostage situations.

Last week was only the third time the team has been called out in their first year of existence. Thank God they're there.

Opinion

CRACKER CRUMBS

BY DEAN JONES

One of the fringe benefits of a job paid off Friday when I shook the hand of Jersey Joe Walcott.

Jersey Joe was heavyweight boxing champion of the world about the time I was in junior high school, and if I wasn't the world's greatest boxing fan, I still know that men like Jersey Joe, Ezzard Charles and Rocky Marciano were just like Joe Louis and Paul Bunyon.

They were giants and they weren't quite believable. Nobody was that good.

They stood nine feet, six inches tall, chewed nails for breakfast and spit out the rust for dessert and they were really mean dudes... just as soon tell in your left eye just to watch the expression in your right eye.

Oh yeah, and one of 'em had a blue ox named Babe and ate a lot of flapjacks. I think that was Ezzard Charles.

So what was this nice old man doing in the Lake Shore Middle School gym Friday night? This was a great chance for some investigative reporting and I wasn't about to let it pass.

After all, former world heavyweight champs don't come to Belle Glade. Former world heavyweight champs don't walk up to me and shake hands and they don't referee a boxing match in a middle school gym in a small farming town.

And, above all, they aren't as small as this guy was. Heck, he wasn't even seven feet tall in your face, he wasn't six feet tall in your face, he never was.

Sure, he was in good shape. Matter of fact, I know he has to be in his mid to late sixties and I'd use to be in that shape when I'm 45... which ain't all that far away, come to think of it.

At any rate, the lastest impression I had was of a heckin' nice guy, someone who was conscious of his fans by standing off waiting for someone to make introduction or by giving the impression he was doing you a favor by sticking out his hand and saying, "Hi, I'm Walcott."

And I noticed you didn't have a camera around your neck either, or be "somebody connected with anybody," seemed as though he genuinely enjoyed meeting people and he was having a good time.

Jersey Joe had to be doing some thinking throughout the evening though.

Thinking about things like his share of the first pro bout he was ever in was $7.50... 50 cents less than the price for a general admission ticket to Friday's fight.

Another thing I noticed was when Jeff Sims had backed up opponent, Al Litsky, into a corner only one minute into the round of their fight, and Walcott decided Litsky had been knocked out and he decided the fight, there was no one ready to argue with him... although Sims had reason to argue and Litsky was in shape to argue with anyone.

That was quite the second bout match I've ever seen in person. The first was when Sims knocked out Bob Ellis on Memorial Day and now Sims has seven pro bouts under his belt, with every one a victory by a knockout and a few knockouts coming in the first second round.

Not bad for a home town hero. Who knows, maybe one of these days we can say we knew Jersey Joe.

But talking about knowing someone when it looks as though the same could be said for football.

Remember when Tampa played and lost their first game? Not any longer, sports fans. Looks as though they're real... but then again so is Pittsburgh. As the sportsman covering their game with Mike Sanday said more than once, didn't look as though anyone could have beaten the Steelers that day at least.

What with Houston in the playoffs and Dallas out, it looks this weekend as though the whole football world was topey tune, especially after North Carolina beat Michigan in the Gator Bowl Friday night by the way. Clemson defeated Ohio State last year.

But the Atlantic Coast Conference sporting the best win-loss record in out-of-conference play in intercollegiate football???

Come on, now. Who would believe that ten years ago.

Maybe that's an appropriate note with which to end the decade.

see a direct and immediate response to it.

The Shop Pahokee First campaign was a direct benefit. It was well received by residents and businessmen alike.

We suggest that next year, the Chambers of both Pahokee and Belle Glade join together to produce an enlarged and even greater production. It could well be a way to increase the effectiveness of the Chambers as well as helping the communities in general.

System works

Some of the best news to come out of the 1970s, as we enter the '80s, is that despite the crises following such events as Watergate, the Belle Glade city elections in 1974 and 1979 and the recent murder of a Miami resident by four police officers, is that the system works.

The people involved in government in America may be dishonest and subject to human frailties just as everyone else is but the system of government, handed down by the founding fathers, does work when given a chance.

Granted, everyone wasn't satisfied in the mid-'70s when Gerald Ford, who hadn't been elected president by anyone, granted executive pardon to Richard Nixon but the system took its toll when Nixon was forced to resign from office.

It may be cold comfort to the soul of a Miami motorcyclist who was apparently beaten to death by four Dade County police officers, or to that motorcyclist's widow and children but the system works, despite the words of a NAACP news release.

The system worked in that case because an assistant medical examiner decided during an autopsy that the wounds came from a beating rather than an accident. The system worked because the four officers, and their sergeant who assisted in a coverup, were exposed by other members of the police department of which they are members.

No system of justice can prevent murder and no set of laws can breathe life back into a corpse but the laws can provide punishment for those who commit murder and that system is doing just that now.

By the same token, no set of laws ever conceived in the mind of men can force clean elections or ensure that the best candidate will win. All the system can do is provide for recourse under the law for anyone who has been wronged in an election, or who thinks they've been wronged.

Under the legal system we now live, Kenneth Harris sought and received recourse under the law and under that same law, Dorothy Walker is appealing the decision made by Judge William Williams.

In the meantime, both parties have become candidates for the East Borough seat in the special election ordered by Judge Williams and set by the city commission for Jan. 29.

The system is working, just as our forefathers foresaw. The system isn't perfect. Neither are the people within the system. If the people were perfect, we wouldn't need the system.

And the fact remains that unless we use the system, we might as well not have it, and it wouldn't be able to work.

A person, under or outside the system, can literally get away with murder unless someone uses the system to punish the murderer, as has been done in Miami.

"The System" is nothing more than a tool. It can't do anything by itself, any more than a hammer, left to itself, will drive nails.

But if it's nothing more than a tool, it is a good tool and when we use it, we can build a cage for those who would thwart both the public and "the system."

And that's good to know because we've only four more years to 1984.

checked onto the tentative bond $32 million worth of road improvements in the Glades.

Koehler and Bailey, who was also present for the regular Lions Club luncheon, said the Glades currently provides some 5 per cent of the total tax revenue to the county, then went on to say the commissioners have tentatively agreed the bond money should be spent on a formula including the income from the geographic area of the county and the need for new roads or road maintenance.

He said a disproportionate share of the bond issue will probably be spent in Commissioner Frank Foster's district because that's where most of the needs have been established.

He stressed, however, that the bond expenditures are so far tentative and said if the Lions have any suggestions about where the funds will be spent if the bond issue is approved in the election, they should be sure and let the commissioners know.

Lion Bert Ward brought up another facet of transportation when he said he thought it might be cheaper for the county to provide public transportation needs cheaper through a limousine service than "those rotten buses" the county now has. Koehler noted the county will have, during the next five months, a new fleet of 40 mid-sized buses.

He said the windows of the buses will open so they won't have to run air conditioning all the time but went on to say the county will also have to take a hard look at mass transit needs in the county during the next decade because the price of gasoline, "isn't going anywhere but up."

Koehler said the county may look in the near future to the possibility of using small vans, mini-buses and vans to meet transportation needs.

In still another area of transportation, Milton Carpenter asked Koehler how he feels about moving Palm Beach International Airport from its existing site because of complaints by neighbors about the noise.

Koehler said that unless it can be shown to him the move will be cost-effective, he would oppose such a move but when the move is made, he said he has considered several uses to which the existing airport property could be put, including an industrial park and public housing.

He said another idea he has been kicking around has been a monorail system tying the downtown West Palm Beach area to outlying centers, "not so much as personal transportation but as a symbol."

"I'm not saying these are things the commissioners, or even any one of the commissioners are backing," Koehler said, "but they are things we can be thinking about as we move into the '80s."

THE TWO-WEEK COMMON COLD

While you may not associate a two-week illness with a minor cold, it is true that some cold viruses are able to linger on for many days. A variety of different viruses can cause common cold symptoms. Some of them can provoke a cough that lingers for a week or more.

Although there is no cure, the best procedure is to drink plenty of fluids to help loosen congestion and eliminate toxins from the body. For a severe cold, bed rest is usually a good idea, since fatigue only complicates matters.

Through the Centuries

Through cold, snow-covered fields, underneath ice-encrusted trees, the river runs its course.

This brings to mind the Christian Church. It was founded upon the teachings of Jesus who lived His life and did His work unperturbed by the coldness of many of His fellowmen and of the ruling officials. He knew that His work would stand because it was founded upon truth. It not only stood, but has flowed steadily on for centuries. It is still going on today in His churches.

If you do not attend church services why not go this coming Sunday, and identify yourself with this steady flow of the best for which life stands?

There is always room in the river for one more drop of water. There is always room in the Church for one more worshiper.

Taking it from the Top

By Rev. David T. Evans

Dear friends in the Glades,
Christmas is over and the New Year's Day will be behind you before you read this. I want to give you three Epiphany Gifts (Epiphany is Jan. 6 and celebrated as the time the wise men came to Jesus).

My gifts are not gold, frankincense, and myrr, but faith, safety and peace.

Faith is a necessary gift and vital to life. Faith enables each of us to go on when we have no hope. Faith is a gift of God so I give it only as an intermediary.

My faith was passed on to me by my mother and father. I saw me through pneumonia, hip problems and college seminary. Today my wife strengthens my faith when things go wrong or when I'm tired. I have passed this on to my children. I hope they will use it.

Faith in God enables us to go on when the world, the country, state and community seem to be in chaos. Faith is based on believing and working for what you believe. I practice this and I hope you will.

Safety is an attitude of mind and continual practice of doing that which protects you and your family. The east coast from Palm Beach to Miami is suffering from accidents which cause death and injuries.

Safety in driving comes from patience and thinking that the other driver may do the wrong thing. Be patient and remember that safety is no accident. Don't count on the other driver to be a safe and sane driver.

My final gift is another gift which comes from God. Peace. We all want peace in the world, our country and our community. This peace must begin with the individual.

Peace comes from acceptance of the God's love in Christ. If we accept God's peace which gives calmness of spirit then we can have a quietness in our souls. This quietness gives up peace and we can spread this in our lives. Peace is contagious.

Calvin Peete is 27th on pro golfers tour

By JIM JONES

Calvin Peete was in the Glades area this April and hoping to at last break into the top 60 money makers on the Professional Association tour.

In three previous years on the tour, Peete had won approximately $65,000 — just about enough to cover his expenses.

Peete sauntered into the Clewiston Golf Course pro shop Dec. 21 and sat down to talk about the 1979 PGA tour. Peete was in Clewiston to relax after a hectic spring, summer and fall, earning $122,000 and finishing 27th on the PGA money list.

Peete was pleased.

"It was my best performance by far. I always had a feeling I'd play well. But I didn't expect it to be this fast," Peete said.

For Peete, things have always happened fast once he put his mind to it. He was 23 years old before he ever picked up a golf club. In just a few years he was a scratch player and beginning to think about trying for a PGA card.

In between there was a lot of practice. Peete tried three years before finally earning a PGA card. Out of 400 golfers which try each year, about 13 are good enough to earn the card.

"I got to know Calvin through golf," says Sylvester Humphrey. "I used to watch him shag balls for hours at Sugarland Park."

Humphrey, Phil Roland and John Perry are some of Peete's most avid local fans.

"I've never played with Cal, but I've watched him hit the ball a bunch," Roland says.

Peete used to set up an umbrella at the end of a fairway and then hit hundreds of balls at it.

Roland believes it is the persistence that brought Peete to the top. "A lot of people want to stop practicing when they start hitting the ball well," says Peete. "That's the time to keep going."

Roland says this constant practice gives professional golfers the sense of the tempo they need to play consistently for 18 holes of golf.

"When the pressure is there you can still bring the club back the same way," he says.

Clewiston pro Winn Gibbs agrees. "It takes discipline and natural ability to stay out there eight hours a day."

Peete was raised in Pahokee, has a South Bay mailing address, but calls Clewiston home. He comes here in the winter months to get away from the PGA crowds. Clewiston's quiet is a relief.

He doesn't practice as much as he once did. Now, he takes a more scientific approach, filming his stroke to analyze flaws.

Peete broke on top in 1979 with a victory in the Greater Milwaukee Open. He was tied for 11th in the U. S. Open later in the season. The top 16 qualified in that tournament for golf's premier event, the Masters in Augusta.

Peete became only the second black man to qualify for the Masters tournament. He is looking forward to competing for the green jacket in 1980 that historically goes to the winner of that tournament.

Peete also won the Quad Cities Tournament this year and finished third in the Southern Open in Columbus. He led the Southern by one stroke at the end of the third day.

Professional golfers play from January until October — a very long season. But it is exciting all the time, Peete says, when he is playing well.

"Even when I play bad I feel that next week I'll play good," he says.

"The first thing I do when Cal is playing is to look for his score (in the newspaper)," Roland says. "I used to start at the bottom."

"I spent a lot of time down there," Peete says.

Peete will start practicing again after Christmas. His goals for 1980 include playing as well as in 1979, and winning the U. S. Open.

Peete believes he has a shot at the U. S. Open because it is played on the type of course which best suits his game: long and tight.

He'll be practicing three to six hours a day, four days a week after Christmas. Practice includes playing nine holes of golf and practicing at least three hours on the tee.

One thing he probably won't be doing is playing basketball. He cracked a rib last year playing basketball and missed several tournaments.

Despite his success, the 36-year-old golfer remains a relaxed and comfortable person. He is naturally patient and courteous.

"He'll help anyone," says Humphrey, noting that Peete has devoted some time to helping members of the Clewiston High School golf team.

Peete's roots in the Glades are deep. He grew up here. His wife teaches in the Belle Glade public school system.

1979 dominated by high water, election, sewer

By DEAN JONES
Herald-Observer Editor

There were a number of highlights in Glades area news during the second half of 1979 but the news was dominated in Belle Glade by a city election that was set aside in court, in Pahokee by continuing damage at the state park by high water and in South Bay by a water and sewer bond issue controversy leading to charges of "blackmail".

An omen of things to come in the Belle Glade election came early in July with a controversy surrounding three child care centers in which City Commissioner William Grear found himself immersed as director of Wee Care, Inc. Despite assertions the child care controversy shouldn't have any bearing on the city election, Grear's popularity in the West Borough obviously took a beating when he supported the decision by Wee Care to close the three centers operated by the Florida Farmworkers Council and was probably the primary reason he was eliminated when challenged by political newcomers Alma Henry and Randy Davidson.

Davidson won the West Borough seat, the first time a white person had filled it since it was created in 1969, in a runoff on Sept. 18 on the heels of the even more controversial ousting of incumbent Kenneth Harris by Dorothy Walker, the first woman ever elected to the commission and the first black person to represent any borough other than the West Borough.

Harris wasted no time in seeking other measures to hold onto the seat he'd lost by 41 votes, however and filed suit in circuit court the day after the runoff, asking the East Borough election be set aside for a variety of reasons based on claims Miss Walker didn't live in the borough and that she had violated the election code in several other ways.

Harris' request was granted Dec. 18 when Judge William Williams III declared the borough election null and void and ordered a special election, which was set up for Jan. 29 when the city commission held a special session on Dec. 20.

Harris qualified for the special election on Dec. 21 and Miss Walker, who said she intends to appeal Judge Williams' ruling, qualified on Dec. 27.

In July, Belle Glade Police Chief D. Bill Mathis proposed a plan under which police officers would be allocated their own cruisers, a plan taken under advisement by the city commission but which hasn't been acted upon yet.

Belle Glade, South Bay and Pahokee acted independently in July to refuse to take part in a controversial plan by the county commission which would tax property owners and developers to raise money to build roads.

Other July highlights include the dropping of allegations to connect new sewer customers imposed on the City of Belle Glade by the State Department of Environmental Regulation; a fusillade of shots fired in the downtown area of Belle Glade during a two-hour electrical blackout and Calvin Peete winning the July 15 Greater Milwaukee Open, the first major tournament won by the Glades area golfer.

Fireworks started early in August in South Bay when city commissioners called "blackmail" a demand by the Farmers Home Administration that the city include a proposed Palm Beach County Housing Authority project in future plans if the city wanted a $6 million grant to finance water and sewer work.

South Bay received the grant two weeks later, however, after a compromise agreement was reached following a meeting in South Bay of the city commission FMHA officials and Palm Beach County Housing Authority officials. Work on the improvements has since started.

August news highlights were brighter in Pahokee, where plans were announced for a new mental health center to serve the Glades area.

A long struggle ended in August when Belle Glade Police Officer Tim Corderman, the 1978 co-winner of the Police Officer of the Year Award presented by the Chamber of Commerce, died of cancer. Corderman's illness and death had been marked by a large number of city and area residents and his funeral was attended by law enforcement officers from all over the county.

Also in August, a bid to build a low-cost housing project on SR715 across from Palm Beach Junior College was killed when college officials and neighbors of the would-be project loudly protested the idea.

In business, August was marked by a plan, which proved unsuccessful, to build an aircraft plant at Belle Glade Airport and expand the facilities, and by more successful plans announced by Everglades Federal Savings and Loan Association to build a branch in West Palm Beach.

September blew in as March is often credited with doing, like a lion and the entire Glades area bettened down hatches in preparation for Hurricane David, which proved to be little more than a hard breeze in the south part of the Glades area while dealing out considerable destruction the further north one traveled along the lakeshore. The storm did prove out the good sense shown earlier by the Belle Glade City Commission, however, in building the city's Emergency Operations Center.

More destruction came in September when a blaze leveled the Elberta Crute and Box warehouse on Packing House Row and firemen could only keep the blaze from spreading.

The Pahokee City Council had problems of its own in September, when the council decided to meet sewer problems by drawing up an ordinance making homeowners responsible for their own sewer lines. The last week in September also saw the demise of three institutions in the Glades and the births of three institutions to take their places. Terry Moss Ambulance Service, which provided emergency service to the area for seven years, was replaced when Glades General Hospital began its own service.

News was also made by newspapers when Hammell Newspapers ended the era of the Belle Glade Herald and the Everglades Observer, in Pahokee, by combining the two into a new newspaper, the Herald-Observer, and creating a new, free distribution newspaper, the Lake Leader, as a service providing news to the Glades area twice a week.

Combined with the Lake Shore Shield, the Leader provides a news package to everybody in western Palm Beach County on Tuesdays while the Herald-Observer picks up on news coverage for the rest of the week to a paid-circulation audience on Thursdays.

October began with more bad news when the South Florida Water Management District warned of a possible all time record high level of Lake Okechobee, brought on by record rains in the Kissimmee Valley and Chain of Lakes region to the north.

The news struck home particularly in Pahokee when officials held the first of two meetings (the last one was held in December) to discuss ways of combatting damage brought to Pahokee Harbor and Pahokee State Park by high water, including the erosion of 25-30 feet of shoreline.

While no definite solutions have been announced yet, hints by the state Department of Natural Resources and other state officials have been made that something can be done by the state to alleviate the damages.

The lake damage was offset by news that the relocated extension of SR80 would begin by the first of the year and that Southeast Cablevision Inc., after a number of complaints by viewers that finally reached area Chamber of Commerce and city commission ears, was bought out by Jones Interchange, Inc.

Water problems also ushered in November, with news that the Florida Power & Light cooling reservoir in Indiantown had ruptured the dike surrounding the reservoir and flooded a 17 mile stretch of US441, causing the evacuation of a number of residents and damage to the area that is still being assessed.

In Belle Glade, four landlords were sued in November for being hostile nuisances because their apartment buildings were alleged to be in an advanced stage of deterioration.

Pahokee City Councilmen continued to address financial woes by deciding to grant pay raises to department heads . . . but only if they asked for them. The city council also granted a request by city taxi operators to tear down the old taxi stand on East Lake, only to face and grant a second demand to build a new one.

South Bay City Commissioners may have commiserated with their Pahokee counterparts but they were too busy facing complaints of their own when a number of citizens showed up for commission meetings to complain about the number of dogs running free in the city and overturning garbage cans. That controversy hasn't been settled yet.

Better news came in sports when both the Glades Central and Pahokee teams went into the state playoffs. The Blue Devils were stopped in the semi-finals and the Raiders lost in the state champion game to overpowering teams from Dunnellon and Milton, both of which went on to their second consecutive state titles.

November came to an end, with more pleasant news for high school students when the Palm Beach Junior College Board of Trustees announced that, beginning next June, students in the top 10 per cent of their graduating classes, throughout the county, would be granted free tuition at the local college.

Little original news was created in the Glades during December but the continuing problems of the city election in Belle Glade and damage to the Pahokee State Park saw some new developments.

On the other hand, the Pahokee City Council, despite written requests, decided to continue the insurance coverage through Blue Cross-Blue Shield. And long time Belle Glade resident Bea Ward won the Hawg Calling Contest at the annual Chitlin Strut in Salley, S.C.

Six families forced from home by fire

PAHOKEE A blaze which leveled an apartment building on East Lake last week sent six families into the Episcopal Church for two days, then into homes of friends and relatives while the 35-40 occupants seek permanent housing.

Red Cross volunteer Leon Oknewski said Wednesday evening the families were left with nothing but the clothes on their backs and, although the Red Cross is supplying food vouchers and will supply more help as soon as housing is found, some of their needs still haven't been met.

Oknewski said he will appear before the Pahokee City Council next Tuesday to ask that part of the Chamber of Commerce Building be used as a collecting point for donations of clothing, bedding and other necessities such as pots and pans and dishes.

Oknewski said a number of volunteers have already donated articles and help, including Oseola Sugar Corporation, which donated beds and bedding the night of the fire, but he said further help is needed.

West Palm recording rises to Number 3

The gap between New York City and Nashville is one that may seem insurmountable to some.

But Susan Stryker, who's recording of "Sunday Song" has hit number 3, on WIRK's Country K Survey, is one woman who hopes to span that gulf.

Miss Stryker is what she describes as a stationary freak. "I've been writing seriously for about seven or eight years. A song just pops into my head and I'll just write until the idea peters out," she said.

Often she relies on personal experience when writing a song. "Sunday Song," which is her first recorded composition, deals with a girl who learns that her love has been placed with a man who belongs to another woman.

But singing hasn't always been her burning desire. She at one time aspired to be an actress, doing off-Broadway productions in New York and studying acting in Hollywood with Lee Strasberg.

"When I moved to Florida, I found out that there weren't many acting opportunities," said the Brooklyn native.

"I had my first exposure to country music down here, and found it more expressive and better suited for my voice. So, I just set about imitating all the local exposure I could," she said.

She has been singing before live audiences since July, and attributes the success of her recording to the local exposure.

Miss Stryker's record is available in Clewiston at Bell's Radio Shack.

Forgotten cigarette starts trailer fire

BELLE GLADE — A forgotten cigarette was apparently the cause of a mobile home fire Wednesday evening in Tillman's Trailer Park at 1608 S.E. Ave. G.

City firefighters responded at 7:22 p.m. to the blaze at Lot 11, a mobile home owned by William Smith and occupied by his daughter, Debbie Smith. Miss Smith said later she had been gone from the trailer for about 20 minutes, according to reports.

Fireman Jesse Womack said the fire was apparently caused by a cigarette that dropped from an ashtray onto a mattress in Miss Smith's bedroom. Fire Chief Pete Webb said there was no estimate on damages.

New business opens

Prices competitive with businesses on either coast is the aim of Lou Hairston, 38, owner of Mowers Unlimited, one of Clewiston's newest businesses.

"My prime business is the sales and service of small engines, lawn mowers and garden equipment," says Hairston, a man with 25-years experience as a mechanic.

Located at 850 E. Ventura Avenue near the Industrial Canal, the business already features a wide range of mowers and equipment, including Roper, Hahn, Toro, Weed Eater, and Pro High Wheel.

By no later than March he plans to handle all American-made fractional horsepower engines. He also plans to expand his business into farm equipment and tractors.

"We don't believe in selling something we can't service," he says.

Parts are now in stock for all equipment currently offered for sale.

Hairston says he wants to offer local residents quality service in a reasonable time and to reduce high prices. "That's why I'm advertising prices comparable to the coast," he says.

He has been in the Clewiston area for about three years, having worked as service manager for Hendry Tractor Co. and with John Deere in Belle Glade before going into business for himself.

Born in Cleveland, Ohio, he attended public schools in Bedford, Ky. He is a U.S. Air Force veteran and has a wide range of training, including Tecumseh Small Engines, Detroit Diesel, Cummings Diesel, John Deere Hydraulic and Transmissions, Ford Four-Wheel Drive, Factory Training, and aircraft general in the Air Force.

He is married to the former Peggy Young of St. Albans, West Virginia. She is a service representative for Southern Bell Telephone. They are the parent of nine children and attend Hi Haven Baptist Church.

For more information about Mowers Unlimited, call 983-6494. Operating hours for Mowers Unlimited are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. till noon on Saturday.

Registration drive on

Complementing voter registration drives were announced this week by Palm Beach County Supervisor of Elections Jackie Winchester and the League of Women Voters of the West Palm Beach.

Both drives, being mounted to get voters registered for the Mar. 11 presidential primary, will include forays into the Glades area.

Mrs. Winchester said her office's mobile voter registration unit will be in Belle Glade Saturday, Jan. 12, signing up voters from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in the parking lot of U-Save Supermarket at 524 S.E. Ave. E and from 3:30 to 8 p.m. at Glades Plaza.

The League of Women Voters is concentrating its efforts to get younger voters registered, sending units to high schools in the county. The League's units will be at Glades Central High School from 9 a.m. to noon on Jan. 23 and at Pahokee High School from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Jan. 30.

A League spokesman said the units will not only register young voters but answer questions on the voting process and stress the importance of voting.

It should be pointed out, however, that neither of the two efforts will be able to register voters for the Jan. 29 special city election in Belle Glade. From the time that election was ordered by Judge Williams, the books were never opened to new voters because of the short time between the order and the time the election will take place.

Trustees attend workshop

Glades General Hospital Trustees attended a hospital workshop in Atlanta on Dec. 13-16. The workshop was sponsored by the Southeastern Hospital Conference. Workshops were held on a variety of topics that will assist Board Members in meeting their responsibilities for providing quality health care.

The faculty was composed of physicians who were selected by the Southeastern Hospital Conference because of their experience and knowledge.

Trustees who attended the Workshop included: Lee Berryhill, Donald Tanner, David Hill, Dudley Barnes and Clarence Pate.

Sex assault program to be presented

The Sexual Assault Assistance Project with its areas of concern will be presented on Wednesday, Jan. 23, at the Glades Office Building, 9:30 p.m. Community Services meeting. Rape and child sexual molestation prevention measures will also be discussed.

The presenter will be Ms. Harriette Rowe, Project Coordinator in Palm Beach County. Her previous work experience in the Criminal Justice Field plus her educational background in Criminology, Religion, and Philosophy have contributed towards her expertise in the field.

The Community Services meeting is a tool of communication between agencies, as well as the concerned citizens of the community. The meetings are each second Wednesday of the month, September through May each year. For further information, call Palm Beach County Social Services, the coordinating agency, Mrs. Gene R. Cross, Coordinator, telephone 996-1630.

Hospital's blood bank certified

PAHOKEE—Everglades Memorial Hospital Blood Bank has been awarded a two year accreditation by the American Association of Blood Banks (AABB), according to Frank Steinberger, hospital administrator.

Accreditation follows an intensive on site inspection by specially trained representatives of the Association and reflects that the level of medical, technical and administrative performance within the facility meets and exceeds the rigorous standards set by the AABB. By successfully meeting those requirements, Everglades Memorial Hospital Blood Bank joins more than 2,000 similar facilities across the United States that have earned the Accreditation rating and recognition.

Steinberger, explained, "The AABB's inspection and accreditation procedures are voluntary. It is not legally necessary for a blood bank to be accredited, but like many others, our facility has sought accreditation because it represents a level of professional and medical expertise that meets and exceeds government regulations. The primary goal of the program is to assist facilities like ours to achieve excellence, and thus provide higher quality blood, blood products, and service to patients."

Founded in 1947, the AABB is the only national organization in the United States devoted exclusively to blood banking and blood transfusion services. Its membership of scientists, physicians, nurses, medical technologists, laboratory technologists, and administrators is engaged in all aspects of the field. Other programs and services offered by the AABB include the national clearinghouse, a mechanism that allows donors to replace blood for friends, or relatives living anywhere in the country.

While there's inflation interest will be high

So long as annual inflation continues to increase at a 15 percent rate, interest rates will remain high said Lee Cranford, Monday, Dec. 31.

The United States faces the paradox of tight money, high interest rates and high inflation, he said.

Cranford, Everglades Federal Savings and Loan Association vice president, made his comments to Clewiston Rotarians at their weekly Glades Restaurant luncheon.

While the Federal Reserve tries to tighten the money supply to discourage spending, inflation continues to grow. The United States has never faced this problem before, he said.

Making the situation worse is deficit spending and the continued flow of dollars overseas.

Cranford said he is not optimistic about improved interest rates in the near future. Greater demand is being placed on a reduced money supply.

There is a growing feeling that the "federal government can't do everything for us," he said.

One indication of the problem with the dollar overseas is the price of gold. Reports of gold — which sold a few years ago for $35 an ounce — increasing to over $500 an ounce are usually accompanied by reports of the dollar taking another beating, he said.

The United States isn't selling all of the gold being offered on the world market. And much of the gold being purchased is by persons overseas, he said.

Gold buying is a reflection of the huge amount of dollars on the world market and a skeptical attitude on the part of some foreigners "who don't think the dollar is worth very much," he said.

Cranford's comments were an outgrowth of a discussion on savings and loan associations in this country.

The Federal Home Loan Act of 1933 resulted in the creation of modern associations. The original act has since been modified many times to include other features.

Truth in lending requirements which require full disclosure of fees and costs, the Community Reinvestment Act which prohibits offering of loans to minorities, and the red lining, which refuses loans to persons in areas of high crime or arson, were some of the rules passed subsequent to 1933 which affect savings and loan associations.

Among the new offerings permitted by the federal government are Money Market Certificates and Four-Year No Minimum Certificates.

Money Market Certificates are issued for six month periods for interest rates substantially higher than offered by passbook savings accounts. A $10,000 minimum deposit is required. The same rate of interest is offered by U. S. Treasury notes is offered by the Money Market notes.

BELLE GLADE—Pahokee High School's basketball team won the Glades Invitational Tournament held last weekend at Glades Central Community High School Gym, beating out Jupiter, 77-72 in the championship game Saturday night.

The Blue Devils earned the right to play in the championship game by edging out Fort Pierce Westwood Friday night by a score of 68-67 and Jupiter downed the Raiders by a score of 87-56.

Glades Central won the consolation game Saturday night, beating out the Westwood Panthers, 67-57.

Calvin Fountain of Pahokee was named Most Valuable Player for the tournament and joined teammate Boris Banks on the All-Tournament Team along with Gerald Soley and Charles Perkins of Jupiter and Charles Sears of Glades Central.

Pahokee's scoring in the championship game was led by Boris Banks, who picked up 28 points, the most scored by an individual in the game. He was followed by Fountain with 16 points, Lonnie Pendergrass with 13, Leonard Banks and T. Banks with seven points each and John Hannah with six points.

The Jupiter scoring was led by Soley with 23 points, followed by Wiley with 19, Charles Perkins and Raymond with 12 each and Ernest Brown with two points.

In the consolation game, Sears led the scoring, pacing the Raiders with 20 points and 12 rebounds. Sam Anderson followed closely with 19 points and ten rebounds and Barry Adley was the only other Raider scoring in double digits with ten points and two assists.

Eugene Wells had eight points and four rebounds, Jessie Hester had five points and four assists, Sam Smith had four points and one rebound and Willie Rivers made one point.

Scoring for Westwood was led by Kenny Byrd with 17 points, Craig Swope with 13 points and Bobby Swope with ten points. They were followed by Ervin Bennett and Clarence Weathers with six points each, Darrell Williams and John Conly with two points each and Robert Bott with one point.

Glades insurance policy

When members of the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office Glades SWAT Team were called out Dec. 22 when an armed Belle Glade man barricaded himself in his Vaughn Circle home after threatening his two daughters, it was like making a claim on an insurance policy.

It was the second claim made since the SWAT Team was formed a year ago as a special unit designed to combat hostage situations.

The five-man squad, which under the direction of Lt. George Suttle, trains on a monthly basis and each man is responsible for keeping physically fit, a regimen all of them adopt which includes a certain amount of running every day.

The team is divided into three assault men and two snipers, with each man capable of swapping positions at a moment's notice, and each man is equipped with his own car, carrying his gear around with him at all times since he is on 24-hour call.

Suttle said the unit was formed a year ago, after hostages were taken in the South Bay-Belle Glade area twice in a single week.

"We called in the SWAT Team from the coast," Suttle said, "and they cooperated beautifully but there was a delay time until they could get out here from the coast. We wanted to cut the delay time."

The lieutenant, second in command at the Glades sub-station, said he called for volunteers, after receiving permission to form the local SWAT Team, and 14 men responded, from which he said he chose the best five.

"The idea," he said, "is that instead of using 15 uniformed men who don't work together, we'll send in a few men who work together all the time and who know each other and have confidence in what the others on the team can do. Each one of us is aware of what the other four men are capable of."

"That gives us a lot better shot at getting any victims out of a hostage situation without anyone getting hurt or causing bloodshed," he said.

The five men work together under training conditions every other Friday, and have different goals each time they meet.

The day before they were called out on Vaughn Circle, for instance, they went down to Talisman Sugar Corporation, where they've been using the barracks which were once used to house Jamaican sugar cane cutters.

That Friday, Dec. 21, the training goal was to use tear gas and go inside one of the barracks to flush out a "criminal".

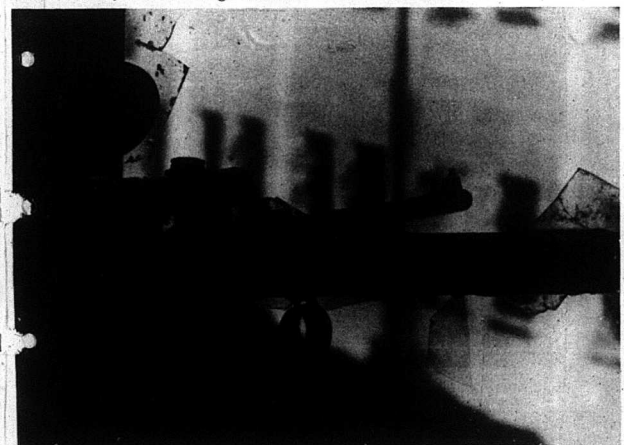

Under ordinary circumstances, Suttle said, there would be two snipers deployed in the surrounding area while the three assault

To be more positive, make a New Year's Resolution

By now everyone should have decided what their New Year's Resolutions will be and how they are going to go about accomplishing these feats.

I, for one, have given up on the myth that you can accomplish anything just by deciding in one day to change all the flaws and lacks in your individual life by just wishing it to be so.

For example, I would dearly love to be a more positive person. No middle of the fence, maybe yes, maybe no, I see both sides, type of person. Just a staunch yes or no will do, thank you. But ya know, it's so hard to take a stand. Don't ask me my opinion on too many controversial subjects, you may get two different answers. The answer I gave the first person who asked my opinion, and the opposing argument of the person who disagreed. One person summed it up very well, I thought, when they said they could be a more positive person if they didn't have two hands. Every time they made up their mind, they had to reconsider and say, "but on the other hand!"

On the social side, you might like to know that there is going to be a carnival starting tonight in Pahokee. The Kiwanis Club of the Glades is sponsoring the carnival to be held in the new Pahokey City Park, Jan. 2-6.

The proceeds from the carnival will go to replenish the Kiwanis Club's funds.

As many of the Glades residents know, the Kiwanis Club is a service organization, founded in Jan., 1978.

The organization has 26 members in the Glades club, but is a part of a large organization that donates its time and money to help other people.

In 1979 the Glades Kiwanis Club donated their time and money to many worthy causes: The Association for Retarded Citizens, The Planned Parenthood Organization, and Muscular Dystrophy, just to name a few.

This club is composed of area businessmen and individuals who care about this community and are working to make it a better place to live.

Having met many of these guys, I can truly say without a middle of the road opinion, they are a great bunch.

Hope you can all make it to the carnival.

members went into the building after the suspect. In this case, only one sniper was used because the second sniper was one of the team members who was sent into the building as the suspect.

With the sniper entering an adjacent barracks and covering the windows and doors of the barracks, Suttle and two others covered the blind side of the building, used recommended tactics to climb the stairs to the second floor, threw in two tear gas grenades and flushed out the suspect.

Suttle himself played the part of the suspect the second time around and, after he'd been flushed out, the five men took a two mile run down a canal levee and back.

Other training includes rappelling down the side of buildings. As a demonstration, they rappelled down the side of the old Belle Glade Fire Department barracks before traveling to Talisman that Friday but Suttle said they normally use the West Palm Beach Fire Department fire training tower, a five-story building.

Each of the men carry with them a short length of rope and a "D" ring they rig into a harness around their hips, then use a double strand of rope to slide down the side of the building.

Mike Stull, assistant squad leader and rappelling master, said the team has enough rope to slide down a 20-story building and training includes entering windows in one of a variety of positions, including upside down and using no hands.

Suttle said the team also spends a certain amount of time in the Holiday Inn swimming pool swimming. "We have to be able to swim for six minutes, holding an M-16 above water the entire time."

The team, he said, was patterned after Special Forces units in the Army and the team members are heavily armed.

Each of the team members are equipped with their service weapons and 12 gauge riot guns. Suttle and Deputies Bobby James and Timmy Brooks make up the assault members of the squad and are equipped with M-16 assault rifles. Brooks carries a tank M-16 with a telescoping stock.

Suttle and Deputy Henry Jones are the team snipers and are equipped with 30.06 rifles with telescopic sights and Stull is also equipped with a tear gas grenade launcher.

Suttle pointed out that so far the team hasn't been required to use the awesome firepower it commands. The Dec. 22 incident was resolved when Suttle talked the man who'd barricaded himself in his home to give himself up, for instance.

Should the team ever have to use its firepower, he said the snipers may have to remain in position for hours on end, waiting for one shot. Meanwhile, should an assault be called for, the three assault team members have a tremendous amount of firepower available through either the M-16s or the shotguns. The assault rifles are equipped with 30-round banana clips.

Besides their awesome firepower, the SWAT Team members are equipped with gas masks, their rappelling gear, special radios which aren't monitored or in use by other police agencies.

"It's sort of like an insurance policy," Suttle noted. "We make premium payments every day and hope we never have to make a claim."

BOBBY JAMES waits at door during building assault.
